SPRING PROM

Junior-Senior Prom APRIL .

"Spring Cruise" was the theme of this year's Prom. Entering Phraner Gymnasium by a gangplank, the girls and their dates found themselves on the deck of an ocean liner complete with ship's rail, navigator's bridge, and realistic seascape backdrops. Music was once again provided by the Prince tonians. A good cross-section of academies and colleges from the northeast was represented by dates hailing from Princeton, Dartmouth, Harvard, Williams, Andover, Lawrenceville, Pingry, and many other schools

Prom Chairman was Susan Armstrong. She was assisted by Kate Burke, in charge of blind dates; Mary Nettleton and Mary Anne Winterer, decorations; Diana Pope, invitations; and Marilyn Rippie, refreshments.

A.A. Rally

The gym meet, held on the night before spring vacation, is the climax of the winter athletic program, and the year's most exciting competitive event. In the meet the Greens and Golds compete for teams' points in basketball, tumbling, tap dancing, Danish gymnastics, volleyball, apparatus, and team songs. This year it was won by the Golds team with a score of 92 over 84 for the Greens

BOOTS AND SADDLES

The members of Boots and Saddles this year elected for their president, Pat Hewlett; for vice-president, Ginny Teller; and for secretary-treasurer, Carolyn White. Jean Webb, who was forced to leave school this year because of illness, was named honorary president because of her very active participation in the club in the past. Miss Josephine Emerson was the club adviser

Many of the club's members ride in the various shows nearby. In February the club sponsored the Limited Working Hunter class at the third show of the Northern New Jersey Horse Show Association at the West Orange Armory. This year for the first time the club has subscribed to and enjoyed The Chronicle." The main project of the club, the annual Kent Place Horse and Dog Show, was held in the spring at the Watchung Stables

CHRISTMAS STAR

The Christmas Star, in which the whole school participates, is one of the most beautiful Kent Place traditions. Each girl, carrying a lighted candle into the darkened gym, joins the others to form a huge star. After the program of carols, the Bethlehem story as told in St. Luke is narrated from the stage by the two Christmas angels, this year they were Kate Burke and Mary Ranson. Between the narrators is a tableau of the manger scene and the Glee Clab in choir vestments sings its part of the program kneeling in front of the stage.

The officers of Student Government this year were Kate Burke, president; Sally Cooke, secretary; Ann Moser and Caroline Seager, vice-president; and Sidney Welsh and Ellen Smith, assistant secretaries Miss Elizabeth Wilcox and Miss Dorothy Sampson, representing the faculty, gave a great deal of time to the council.

During 1952-1953 the council has made an effort to evoke real interest from the student body and to urge the girls to participate in Student Government meetings. It has also attempted to execute as many constructive suggestions of the students as possible. The council this year has been working under the constitution which was revised last year. The president and vice-president of the dormitory are new members of the council.

The system of having assemblies conducted by the students has been revived and extended to include two assemblies a week. The leaders have been junior and senior council members, and students have played for hymn singing.

One of the projects of Art Club this year was supplying posters for the different school activities. Among the most prominent of these were the Student Council's cleanup campaigns. For the first time Art Club has had a pin of its own. It also sponsored the art contest held in the spring

The Junior Dramatic Club for members of the sophomore class has been very active this year. With the help of Mrs. Paul Tilson at their weekly meetings, they have gained experience both in acting and production. Backstage they have made the scenery, learned to apply stage makeup, and planned the costuming for their two plays.

The officers of the club were: Gay Hart, president; Mustice Mountain, vie president Sara Lipp neote, secretary-treasurer; and Barbara Hilyard, head of pro-

The staff of the Middle School Log was headed this year by Lucy Gale, with the assistance of Sally Mathiason and Carol Riddell

The magazine, which came out three times during the year, consisted of news articles, poems, essays, and book or play reviews contributed by members of the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades. It was printed by the girls themselves; and the staff was under the guidance of Miss Elizabeth Cowap. Musty French was editor of this year's Windward, the literary magazine, which appeared for the first time last year. This year the magazine came out in May, and contained the prize short stories, essays, and poems submitted to the contest held in February and March. The staff consisted of two girls from each class in the upper school, and Miss Florence Wolfe and Mrs. Hugh Kelley were the faculty advisers.

CARGOES

Work was begun on Cargoes almost immediately after school opened in the fall. The staff, consisting entirely of seniors, was appointed in October, and held their first meeting soon after. Jane Dunn was named editor-in-chief; Louise McCarthy, business manager; and Ann Boyer, assistant editor. Miss Florence Wolfe and Mrs. Hugh Kelley were the faculty advisers

In October three of the staff attended the annual Columbia Yearbook Conference in New York. There they examined the yearbooks of other schools and heard authorities speak on various phases of yearbook publication. Immediately afterwards work was begun on the layout of this year's book.

Cargoes was distributed to the seniors on the Monday before Graduation and to the rest of the school on Class Day

DEDICATION

We, the Class of 1953, dedicate this, our yearbook, to Miss Dorothy Sampson, in restaurable to the factors that makes the senior year at Kent Place such a wonderful experience.

PUBLISHED BY THE SENIOR CLASS
KENT PLACE SCHOOL, SUMMIT, N. J.

Miss Florence Wolfe Headmistress

1953 CARGOES

FOREWORD

For everyone the yearbook is the incorporation of the events and traditions of the school year; it is the embodiment of the work and endeavor which are put into all the activities and studies; it is the embodiment too of the friendships and associations which are so much a part of our school life and from which, when we look back in future years, we will derive our greatest pleasure.

For the seniors it holds the added meaning of being the last record of the class together, the final assemblage before we separate and go our different ways to college and the future.

Vear Gail rear bail, Iwash you were coming back to Dean old K.P. (Hata) Ohwell. this sure is by picate of me thousets start again. Our Gail House a great funner, lucky thing no summer regaing etc ... set you ex the ted love, Down
